This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

WEBSTER'S

ELEMENTARY-SCHOOL DICTIONARY

This handy and compact volume is intended for use in all grades of the elementary schools and for the general reader. It is an abridgment of the New International Dictionary, but the language of the definitions is simplified where this language seems too difficult for the young student.

Its Vocabulary

Of nearly 45,000 entries comprises all the words found in the school texts generally used, and includes commercial terms, the technical expressions of ordinary business, and words used in the elementary sciences.

It gives the correct spelling, capitalization and pronunciation of words, and the inflected form when the inflection is irregular. The definitions are marked by the clearness and precision that always characterize the Webster series.

In separate tables are

A pronouncing geographical and biographical dictionary,
A pronouncing dictionary of foreign words and phrases,
Abbreviations used in writing and printing,
A list of measures, weights, metric system, money, decimal equivalents, etc.

Illustrations

In addition to the profuse and helpful cuts in the text are some sixteen full pages of special illustrations.

PREFACE

The dictionary for elementary schools may, in some respects, be considered the most important book that a pupil will use. It is his first reference book. His use of it is his first attempt to gain information independently of teacher or guide. The elementary-school dictionary should, therefore, at once inspire confidence, should so present information as to invite frequent use, and, to a degree, should take the place of the suggestive, experienced teacher in answering questions concerning the meaning and use of words. If it does this, it not only will supply the information wanted at the moment, but will inspire the user to seek habitually the stores of information in the complete dictionary and encyclopedia and, ultimately, in the library.

Realizing the importance of this introductory book, the editors have studied its problems with the greatest care; have consulted with teachers and superintendents as to the proper scope of the vocabulary; have sought special help in the selection of the words used in elementary science and technical subjects, and have endeavored to learn how best to present a word's meanings to immature minds.

As a consequence of this study, it was decided to limit the vocabulary in size; to devote more space to developing a word's meaning, especially by the use of illustrative sentences or phrases; to include for the first time in an elementary dictionary discriminated synonyms; to give more information than heretofore respecting the spelling of inflected forms, such as the plurals of nouns, the present and past participles of verbs, the cases of pronouns, and the comparative and superlative forms of adjectives; to show more clearly how one word is connected with another in sentences (for example, the prepositions with which a verb is customarily used); and to define the important idiomatic phrases the meaning of which it is often impossible to learn from the ordinary school dictionary. Another innovation is the grouping together of the pictures of certain classes of objects so that the individual differences become more evident.

In no sense is the Elementary-School Dictionary a revision of any previous work. It is abridged from Webster's New International Dictionary, and, where possible, retains the language of the original definitions; but frequent use was made of Webster's Secondary-School Dictionary where simplification seemed desirable, and independent work carried the simplification still further so as to meet the needs of the elementary grades. In plan and presentation, therefore, the Elementary is entirely new, and the illustrative examples especially were studied and chosen from independent sources.

Vocabulary. The vocabulary covers the essential words found in the literature of the elementary schools and, also, most of the terms that the pupil will meet in general reading. In order that the terms of elementary science might be adequately treated, lists of the names of the common plants and animals that are studied and of the words used in describing them were obtained from experienced teachers of science and nature study. Technical terms, if of general use, have also been given, especially the words common in business and the trades and those relating to government and political institutions. Naturally, such recent words as aërogram, aileron, dictograph, hangar, marconigram, radiograph, sabotage, etc., have been included. The familiar names of classical and Teutonic mythology are defined, also many names of races and nations, and the leading characters of the Bible, for all of these are of frequent occurrence in literature, although heretofore they have received but scant mention in the smaller school dictionaries.

As is to be expected, a teacher of a special subject will search in vain for the less familiar technical terms of that subject, that is, such terms as would be encountered only by more advanced students or students in specialized technical schools. Thus, while such musical terms as staff, clef, rest, note, pitch, octave, scale, chord, interval, chromatic, diatonic, major, minor, andante, adagio, largo, oratorio, symphony, scherzo, etc. are briefly but clearly defined, words like supertonic, scherzando, etc. are not included. All words of frequent occurrence in the school classics have been included, but an unusual word that may be used in only one story, even though this be somewhat popular, may not be given. For such words, when needed, the teacher should direct the pupil to the complete dictionary. No school dictionary can cover them without slighting more essential subjects. Without counting several thousand inflected forms, the Elementary-School Dictionary, in all departments, contains 44,322 entries.

Definitions. All definitions have been expressed in the simplest language that accuracy would permit, and great care has been exercised to use in the definitions only such words as are contained in the dictionary itself. The definition proper has usually been supplemented by one or two close synonyms, or, often, by words of opposite meaning, since class-room work has proved how valuable these aids are in developing a pupil's conception of a word. The definitions of the adjective active, show how helpful is the citing of words of opposite meaning, for in one sense it is "opposed to passive," in another to dormant, in a third to sluggish, etc. Finally, in response to repeated suggestions from teachers, the definitions of many words, especially of such as have developed numerous secondary or figurative uses, have been illustrated by sentences or phrases.

Illustrative Examples. Too much emphasis cannot be laid upon this feature of the book; — one that is found in no other elementary dictionary and marks an advance that renders Webster's Elementary-School Dictionary of unique utility for school purposes. Few realize the many different senses in which familiar words like strike, keep, work, bear, break, etc. are used even in ordinary talk. Many of these senses are so remote from the word's original meaning as to demand separate definitions. And yet to give simply a series of definitions is confusing, however accurately they may be expressed, since it is impossible, for the child at least, to identify the one desired. But the instant a concrete example is given the definition is cleared up, illuminated as with a strong light. An examination of any page of this book reveals how widely this helpful device has been employed in developing the meanings of the fundamental words of the language.

Synonyms. For the first time in an elementary-school dictionary discriminated synonyms are included. Some eight hundred terse articles are scattered through the book, and in them more than twenty-four hundred separate words are carefully compared and discriminated. At the words above (discriminated from over, on, upon), abettor (from accessory, accomplice), abrupt (from steep, precipitous) will be found examples of these articles. There are also included some seven hundred lists of undiscriminated synonyms, as at arrest, associate.

Inflected Forms. Plurals of nouns and pronouns, principal parts of verbs, cases of pronouns, and the comparative and superlative forms of adjectives are shown where in any way irregular. Inasmuch as the question is often asked whether certain adjectives are compared by adding -er and -est or by the use of more and most the rules to follow have been phrased and references made to them by number. These subjects are dealt with in detail in the Explanatory Notes immediately preceding the vocabulary.

Spelling and Pronunciation. The preferred forms of spelling and pronunciation of Webster's New International Dictionary are followed in this abridgment. Alternative spellings are given less frequently than in the Secondary-School Dictionary, since, as a rule, it seemed unwise to run the risk of confusing young pupils by presenting two spellings. The fact that alternative spellings exist is, however, fully recognized by giving the alternative form separate vocabulary entry with a cross reference to the preferred form and, in the case of groups of words like color (colour) and center (centre), by giving a numbered reference to a statement respecting the whole class. The pronunciation is indicated by the simple and well-established Webster system of respelling, with one symbol only for each sound.

Capitalization. Proper names or words derived from them, titles, and the like, that should be written or printed with an initial capital have this fact indicated either by beginning the vocabulary entry itself with a capital or by inserting [cap.] at the specific definition affected.

Derivatives. Derivatives are always defined and given individual vocabulary entry if any difficulty of definition is involved. Certain words ending in -able, -er, -or, -ess, -ish, -less, -ly, -ness, whose meaning can be unmistakably learned from the meaning of the primitive word plus the meaning of the suffix, are not defined, but a number is given that directs attention to the list of prefixes and suffixes. Such suffixes are so common and are so much like words in force that their meanings need to be learned quite as much as those of common words.

Prefixes and Suffixes. In addition to the suffixes mentioned above, there are included in the same table the common prefixes and suffixes whose meanings should be studied because of the help they give toward understanding words that the pupil may not previously have met.

Idiomatic Phrases. In English there are many phrases like bring about, bring forth, bring forward, bring to bear, bring to book, bring up, bring up the rear, that are in constant use, but whose meaning cannot be derived from the ordinary meaning of their component words. Hundreds of these phrases are defined in Webster's Elementary-School Dictionary, and this again is an innovation in elementary dictionaries.

Grammatical Relation. Akin to these idiomatic uses are the instances where one meaning of a verb is normally found only when this verb is used with certain prepositions. Thus, in slip off, slip away, slip out, the verb slip has a meaning that is limited to such uses. Such peculiarities of usage are recorded wherever helpful.

Mythology. Such entries as Achates, Acheron, Achilles, Ajax, Aladdin, Alberich, Tannhäuser, Tantalus, Zeus, from Greek, Roman, and Teutonic Mythology are given careful definition, for they are needed to explain the numerous references to these characters in all literature.

Geographical and Biographical Names. Geographical and biographical names form a distinct class of their own, and are, therefore, kept as a separate vocabulary. In the geographical entries are given the official spelling and pronunciation, location, controlling nation, and such statistical information as area, population, length, height, etc. In the biographical entries are the names in full, pronunciation, titles, nationality, characteristic work, date of birth and, if not living, of death.

Foreign Words and Phrases. The use frequently made of this vocabulary in selecting mottoes justifies its inclusion as a separate table. In it are given, with accurate translations, many phrases current in literature, mottoes of nations, states and great institutions, and the like. The pronunciation, also, is indicated.

Abbreviations. In this general list are shown the official abbreviations for country and state names as well as the many commercial abbreviations in common use, and hundreds of other shortened forms.

Tabular Matter. Here are included the valuable tables of Weights and Measures of the United States and England, the Metric System with equivalents in the ordinary units, Coins and Coin Tables of leading European countries, Decimal Equivalents of Common Fractions, Common-Fraction Equivalents of various percentages, etc.

SYMBOLS USED TO INDICATE PRONUNCIATION

ACCENTS AND HYPHENS. The principal accent is indicated by a heavy mark (′), and the secondary accent by a lighter mark (′), at the end of the syllable. Syllabic division is indicated by a light hyphen, except where this is replaced by an accent mark, or by a heavier hyphen used to join the members of words written or printed with a hyphen.

FOREIGN SOUNDS for which no special symbols are provided are represented by the nearest English equivalents.

PRONUNCIATIONS OMITTED. The accentuation only is given for some compound words, and for some derivatives ending in common suffixes like -ess, -est, -ing, -ist, -less, -like, -ness, -ship, if the pronunciation is perfectly regular and can therefore easily be learned from the separate parts. In other cases where a part or the whole of a pronunciation is omitted, it is the same as that of a word immediately preceding, and may be supplied from this preceding entry.

RULES FOR SPELLING CERTAIN CLASSES OF WORDS

FOUNDED ON THE ORTHOGRAPHY OF DR. WEBSTER, AS EXHIBITED IN THIS VOLUME

FINAL CONSONANTS.

§ 1. The letters f, l, and s at the end of monosyllables, and standing immediately after single vowels, are generally doubled; as in staff, cliff, doff, puff, all, bell, hill, toll, null, grass, press, kiss, moss, truss.

EXCEPTIONS: Clef, if, of, pal, as, gas, yes, his, this, pus, plus, bus (for omnibus), thus, and us. The s is not doubled when (as in o's, spade's, tones, loves, has, is, was, etc.) it is used to form the possessive case or the plural of a noun, or the third person singular of a verb.

§ 2. C, h, j, k, q, v, w, and y are never doubled when final. B, d, g, m, n, p, r, t, and x, when final, are doubled in only a few words, the most important being ebb, add, odd, egg, Ann, inn, Finn, Lapp, err, shirr, butt, fizz, frizz, buzz, fuzz.

§ 3. Monosyllables ending with the sound of k, and having c following the vowel, usually have k added after the c; as in black, fleck, click, knock, and buck.

EXCEPTIONS: Lac, sac, roc, arc.

§ 4. Words of more than one syllable, ending in -ic or -iac, are now written (except derrick) without the k; as, maniac, elegiac, zodiac, cubic, music, public. Words of more than one syllable, in which c is preceded by other vowels than i or ia, commonly end in ck; as, barrack, hammock, hillock, wedlock.

EXCEPTIONS: Almanac, rebec, zebec, manioc, havoc.

FORMATION OF DERIVATIVES.

§ 5. Words ending in c have a k inserted when adding a termination beginning with e, i, or y, so that the c shall not be pronounced like s; as, colic, colicky; traffic, trafficked, trafficking, trafficker; physic, physicked, physicking; zinc, zincked, zincking, zincky.

§ 6. Final consonant doubled. Words accented on the last syllable (including words of one syllable) if they end in a single consonant (except k or x) preceded by a single vowel, double the consonant before a suffix beginning with a vowel; as, clan, clan'nish; plan, planned, plan'ning, plan'ner; bag, bag'gage; hot, hot'ter, hot'test; wit, wit'ty; cabal', cabal'ling; abet', abet'ted, abet'ting, abet'tor; begin', begin'ning, begin'ner; infer', inferred', infer'ring. The consonant is doubled to preserve the short sound of the vowel. Thus, plănned, hŏttest and abĕtted, would naturally be pronounced plāned, hōtest, and abēted, if the consonant were not doubled.

EXCEPTIONS: Gaseous, inferable, transferable, and derivatives in which the accent of the primitive is thrown back upon another syllable; as, prefer', preference, refer', reference, defer', deference, etc.

§ 7. Final consonant not doubled. Words accented on any syllable except the last, words ending in more than one consonant, and words ending in a single consonant preceded by more than one vowel, do not double the final consonant before a suffix beginning with a vowel; as, daub, daubed, daub'er; need, need'y; brief, brief'er, brief'est; trav'ail, trav'ailed, trav'ailing; rev'el, rev'eled, rev'eling; trav'el, trav'eling, trav'eler; prof'it, prof'ited; act, act'ed, ac'tor; perform', perform'er; stand, stand'ing.

EXCEPTIONS: In humbug and a few other words ending in g, the g is doubled (humbugged, humbugging) before e or i, so that the g shall not be pronounced like j. The derivatives of kidnap are preferably spelled with one p, although the forms kidnapper, kidnapping, kidnapped are not uncommon. The form woolen, with one l, is usual in the United States, but woollen, with two l's, is preferred in British usage.

§ 8. Double consonant retained. Words ending in a double consonant generally retain both consonants when adding suffixes; as, ebb, ebbing; odd, oddly; stiff, stiffness; tell, teller; skill, skillful, skillfulness; will, willful, willfulness; dull, dullness; full, fullness. So also the double l is retained in the words installment, enthrallment, thralldom, and enrollment (from install, enthrall, thrall, and enroll), in order to prevent a false pronunciation if spelled with one l.

EXCEPTIONS: Illy; dully; fully.

§ 9. Silent e retained. Words ending with silent e generally retain this e before suffixes beginning with a consonant; as, pale, paleness; hate, hateful; incite, incitement; chaste, chastely, chasteness; move, movement; and the derivatives and compounds of these words.

EXCEPTIONS: Wholly, nursling, abridgment, acknowledgment, lodgment, judgment, and, often, certain words (as, due, duly; argue, argument; true, truly; awe, awful) in which the final e of the primitive is preceded by another vowel.

§ 10. Silent e omitted. Words ending with silent e generally drop the e before suffixes beginning with a vowel; as, bride, bridal; guide, guidance; plume, plumage; use, usable, usage; grieve, grievance; come, coming; shape, shaping; move, movable; sale, salable; fleece, fleecy; force, forcible; true, truism.

EXCEPTIONS: The e is retained in hoeing, shoeing, and toeing (from hoe, shoe, and toe), to guard against mispronunciation, but is generally excluded from shoer. It is retained in dyeing, singeing, swingeing, tingeing (from dye, singe, swinge, tinge), to distinguish them from dying, singing, swinging, etc. (from die, sing, swing, etc.). The word mileage, as commonly written, does not omit the e. Words ending in ce or ge retain the e before suffixes beginning with a or o, so that the c or g shall not be pronounced with the "hard" sound; as, peace, peaceable; notice, noticeable; manage, manageable; change, changeable; advantage, advantageous; outrage, outrageous. Mortgagor, pronounced mor'ga-jor', from mortgage, is the form preferred in usage. In derivatives in -able, as usable, useable, salable, saleable, etc., usage is divided and often inconsistent.

§ 11. Ending -ing added to ie. Words ending in ie generally drop the e and change i to y when adding -ing, so as to prevent two i's from coming together; as, die, dying; hie, hying; lie, lying; tie, tying; vie, vying.

§ 12. y preceded by a consonant. Words ending in y preceded by a consonant usually change y to i before any suffix except one beginning with i; as, icy, iciest, icily; mercy, merciless; tidy, tidiness; modify, modifies; foggy, fogginess; earthy, earthiness; pity, pitiful.

The derivatives of adjectives of one syllable generally retain the y; as, shy, shyness; sly, slyest; dry, dryly; spry, spryer, spryest; wry, wryness. But drier and driest, from dry, are commonly written with i instead of y; and drily, shily, sily, are not uncommon. Before -ship and -like, as secretaryship, suretyship, ladyship, citylike, countrylike, and in derivatives formed from baby and lady, the y is retained. The y also is retained in the possessive case of nouns, when formed by adding s with the apostrophe; as, country's, everybody's.

§ 13. y preceded by a vowel. Words ending in y preceded by a vowel generally retain the y unchanged before all suffixes; as, gay, gayety, gayly; play, player, plays; sway, swayed; obey, obeying; joy, joyful; enjoy, enjoyed; buy, buying; gluey, glueyness.

EXCEPTIONS: Daily, laid, paid, said, saith, slain, and staid (from day, lay, pay, say, slay, and stay), with their compounds; dewiness.

§ 14. Adding a vowel to a vowel ending. Words ending with a vowel sound generally retain the letter or letters representing such sound before a suffix beginning with a vowel; as, huzza, huzzaed; agree, agreeable, agreeing; weigh, weighing; dough, doughy; echo, echoed; woo, wooer; bow, bowed. Sometimes cooes, wooes (from the verbs, coo, woo) are found; but coos, woos, like taboos, shampoos, are preferable. Cooed and wooed are proper, like other participles in -ed.

PLURALS.

☞ For irregular plurals, as of man, foot, brother, ox, deer, and for plurals of foreign words, as of datum, genus, index, crisis, consult the individual words in the Vocabulary. See also the Note under the word PLURAL in the Vocabulary.

§ 15. The plural of English nouns regularly ends in s, or, in certain classes of words, in es.

When the singular ends in a sound with which s can unite and be pronounced without forming a separate syllable, s only is added in forming the plural; as, bay, bays; shah, shahs; sea, seas; tree, trees; pie, pies; Hindu, Hindus; woe, woes; canto, cantos; virtue, virtues; purlieu, purlieus; claw, claws; cab, cabs; panic, panics; bead, beads; chief, chiefs; bag, bags; path, paths; ache, aches; plague, plagues; lock, locks; bell, bells; gem, gems; fan, fans; cup, cups; ear, ears; act, acts. Singulars ending in *o generally add s only to form their plurals. Certain words (as, echo, echoes; cargo, cargoes; embargo, embargoes; motto, mottoes; potato, potatoes, etc.) ending in o preceded by a consonant add es to form their plurals. Other nouns ending in o preceded by a consonant generally form their plurals regularly, though usage differs with regard to some of them. As to nouns ending in *i usage differs, though, as a rule, their plurals are preferably written with the termination is; as, Maori, Maoris; rabbi, rabbis; macaroni, macaronis.

When the singular ends in a sound (as that of ch in much, sh, j, s, x, or z) with which s cannot unite in pronunciation, but must form a separate syllable, e is inserted before the s in forming the plural, unless the word ends with silent e, which then forms a separate syllable with the s; as, church, churches; rush, rushes; age, ages; edge, edges; lace, laces; gas, gases; class, classes; alias, aliases; marquis, marquises; case, cases; loss, losses; box, boxes; maze, mazes.

§ 16. Singulars ending in y preceded by a consonant form their plurals by adding es and changing y into i; as, mercy, mercies; lady, ladies; sky, skies; army, armies; pity, pities; Mary, Maries (sometimes Marys). This rule includes words ending in quy, in which u is, strictly, a consonant; as, colloquy, colloquies.

Singulars ending in y preceded by a vowel (except u having the power of w), form their plurals by adding s only; as, day, days; key, keys; money, moneys; monkey, monkeys; attorney, attorneys; alloy, alloys; guy, guys.

§ 17. The plurals of a few nouns ending in f or fe are irregularly formed by changing f or fe into ves. The principal examples are: life, lives; knife, knives; wife, wives; leaf, leaves; sheaf, sheaves; loaf, loaves; beef, beeves; thief, thieves; calf, calves; half, halves; elf, elves; shelf, shelves; self, selves; wolf, wolves. See STAFF, WHARF, SCARF, in the Vocabulary. The plurals of other nouns ending in f, fe, or ff, are formed regularly by the addition of s only.

§ 18. Plural of a letter, figure, sign, etc. To express the plural of a letter, a figure, or any character or sign, or of a word mentioned without regard to its meaning, the letter s, generally preceded by the apostrophe, is appended, as in the phrases: "The two i's in all;" "The two 0's in 400;" "Two a's in Orion;" "He uses too many if's." Some, however, omit the apostrophe in such cases.

MISCELLANEOUS RULES.

§ 19. -er or -re. There is a class of words ending in -er, some of which are written by many authors with the termination -re; as, center, meter, theater, etc., often written centre, metre, theatre, etc. Acre, lucre, nacre, massacre, and ogre retain the termination -re, in order to preserve the hard sound of the c and g.

§ 20. -ize or -ise. Certain words ending, as pronounced, with the sound of long i, followed by z, are written with either -ize or -ise; as, criticize or criticise; civilize or civilise; naturalize or naturalise; patronize or patronise. But the spelling in -ise for this class being now less often used, only the form in -ize is given in this book. Words still retaining the spelling -ise are: those derived from the French verb prendre (participle pris or prise), as apprise, comprise, emprise, enterprise, surprise; and, also, advertise, advise, arise, chastise, circumcise, compromise, demise, despise, devise, disfranchise, disguise, enfranchise, exercise, exorcise, franchise, merchandise, premise, revise, supervise, surmise.

§ 21. mold or mould. The words mold and molt, and their compounds and derivatives, are written in this Dictionary with o instead of ou, in analogy with the words bold, bolt, colt, gold, etc., from which the u has been dropped. Many authors, however, write these words mould and moult, and their derivatives in like manner; and this spelling is also given in this Dictionary as alternative.

§ 22. -or or -our. There is a numerous class of words almost universally written in the United States with the termination -or, many of which are also written, esp. in England, with the termination -our; as, candor, favor, honor, labor, rumor, vigor. English usage, however, is not uniform with respect to these words, many of them being written with -or in English books.

PREFIXES AND SUFFIXES

Note: Only such forms are given as are in active use in forming English words, and no attempt is made to give more than fundamental meanings. In each entry the definition itself of the prefix or suffix is in italics. In the examples the prefix or suffix part of the word is in italics, and likewise in italics is that part of the definition of an example that relates to the prefix or suffix.

PREFIXES

Beyond this fact, the choice between words in the two forms is chiefly due to euphony in any particular case.

-ways. Often interchangeable with -wise, and denoting (an indicated) way, manner, or fashion; as in endways, on end, with the end forward, endwise; noways, in no way or fashion, nowise, noway.

-wise. In (an indicated) way, manner, fashion; -ways; as in endwise, on end, with the end forward; nowise, in no manner or fashion, noways.

EXPLANATORY NOTES AND ABBREVIATIONS

Numbers in brackets. The small numbers, [1], [2], [3], etc., attached to certain words in this Dictionary (as mate, v. t. [1]) refer to the following paragraphs:

[1.] Verbs that are referred by number to this paragraph end in a silent e which is dropped before the endings ed and ing in forming the preterit, or past tense, and the present participle; thus, mate, mated, mating; range, ranged, ranging.

[2.] Verbs that are referred by number to this paragraph end in y preceded by a consonant. The y is changed to i before the ending ed in forming the preterit, or past tense; thus, carry, carried, carrying.

[3.] Adjectives that are referred by number to this paragraph are usually compared by adding er and est. See RULES FOR SPELLING, § 6. Those that end in silent e drop the e before these endings; thus, late, later, latest. Those that end in y preceded by a consonant change the y to i before the endings; thus, sunny, sunnier, sunniest. Adjectives usually compared by adding er and est are: a Those of one syllable; as, big, gay, small. b Those of two syllables accented on the final and not ending in a consonant group; as, polite, severe, serene. c Many adjectives of two syllables accented on the first, especially such as end in w, y, or le; as, narrow, happy, simple. Many adjectives that are usually compared by adding er and est are often compared with more and most for euphony, emphasis, etc. Adjectives like complete, perfect, universal, etc., strictly speaking do not admit of comparison. When we say that a thing is more perfect than another we mean that it approaches nearer to perfection.

[4.] Adjectives that are referred by number to this paragraph are usually compared with more and most. They are: a Those of more than two syllables; as, ignorant, amiable, prodigal. b Those of two syllables ending in a consonant group; as, distinct, correct, ancient, frequent. But some such adjectives, often used in comparison, as pleasant, cunning, usually take er and est. c Those ending in ful; as, mournful, careful; those ending in ive; as, active; many ending in ed and ing; as, wretched, daring.

[5.] Words ending in or that are referred by number to this paragraph (as favor, honor, labor) are by many, especially in England, written with our (as favour, honour, labour). Also, usually, derivatives, as honorable (honourable), honorably (honourably), etc.

[6.] Words ending in er that are referred by number to this paragraph (as meter, center, theater) are by many written with re (as metre, centre, theatre).

[7.] Words referred by number to this paragraph are such as are accented on a syllable other than the last, and preferably do not double the final consonant in adding an ending beginning with a vowel; as, bevel, beveled, beveling; bias, biased, biasing; travel, traveled, traveling, traveler; wainscot, wainscoted, wainscoting, etc. By many writers, however, the final consonant is doubled, unnecessarily and contrary to analogy. These words, which form a large class, mostly end in l.

[8.] A word that is referred by number to this paragraph is entered without definition because it ends with one of the common suffixes -able, -er, or -or, -ess, -ish, -less, -ly, -ness. The meaning of any such word can readily be gathered from the definition of the main word to which it is attached, or of which it is a derivative, in connection with the definition of the proper suffix given in the table, pp. xi–xiv.

Pronunciation. See p. viii.

Preferred Forms of Spelling or Pronunciation. When two or more forms of spelling or of pronunciation are recorded, the general rule has been to place first the one that has been selected as preferable. When instead of a definition there is a cross reference (introduced by =, by Var. of, or by See) to another spelling, the form referred to is the one preferred.

Capitalization. When a word should begin with a capital letter in writing or print, the vocabulary word itself begins with a capital. Where, in a specific use, a different style from that shown by the vocabulary entry is to be followed, [cap.] (meaning a capital initial) or [l.c.] (meaning a lower case, or small, initial) is inserted at the definition affected. Thus Italic, a. in sense 1 should begin with a capital, but in sense 2 a small letter is preferred.

Hyphened Words. Words that are to be written or printed with a hyphen have this hyphen indicated by a mark (–) longer and heavier than the short, light hyphen (-) used to show division into syllables; as in ab'sent–mind'ed, light'–heart'edness.

Principal parts of verbs are given in small capitals after the vocabulary titles, except when the parts are regularly formed by the simple addition of ed and ing. Regular verbs ending in silent e are referred to § 1, above. Regular verbs ending in y are referred to § 2, above.

Plurals are given whenever they are irregular in form or when, from analogy, an irregular form might be expected. For the regular formation of plurals see RULES FOR SPELLING, pp. ix–x.

See PLURAL, after such words as blackfish, deer, quail, trout, etc., refers to the Note under the word plural, n., in the Vocabulary, for information as to the two plural forms in use and the differences in their meanings.

The comparative and superlative forms of adjectives are given in small capitals after the vocabulary word except where these forms are made by the simple addition of er and est or by the use of more and most. See §§ 3, 4, above.

Music, Scot., Archaic, Colloq., or a similar "label," when preceding the first numbered definition of a word, applies to all of the definitions; when preceding a group of definitions distinguished by a, b, c, etc., it applies to the entire group (see SUE, SUITE). Otherwise, such a "label" applies only to the definition to which it is joined. Both or All may precede a "label" (as, Both Colloq.) to show that it applies to two or more parts of speech, as a noun and a verb, defined under one vocabulary title (see SPLUTTER).

‖ prefixed to a vocabulary word indicates that this word is from a foreign language and that it would ordinarily be printed in italic letters when used in English; as, ‖ l'dem, ‖ mas'seur'.

X 2, X 6, $\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{1}{4}$, or the like, inserted at an illustration indicates that a picture is twice, six times, one half, one sixth, etc., as long and as high as the original.

= preceding a word in small capitals indicates that the vocabulary word has the same meaning as the word in small capitals and that the latter is the preferred form.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE

A (unstressed, ə; emphatic, ā), adj., or indefinite article. 1. The shortened form of AN, signifying one or any, and commonly used before words beginning with a consonant sound. See AN. 2. In each; to or for each; per; as, a dollar a yard.

a (ə), prep., a-, a— (ə-), prefix. On; in; at; as in afloat, asleep, once a year, a hunting.

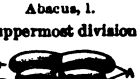
A 1 (ā wŭn). A registry mark given to ships in first-class condition. Hence, prime; first-class.

Aar'on (âr'ŭn), n. The brother of Moses. Aaron is the first high priest mentioned in the Bible.

a-back' (ə-băk'), adv. Back; backward; as, a sail is aback when pressed back by the wind, or a ship is taken aback when so checked; — often used figuratively.

Abacus, 1.

ab'a-cus (ăb'ə-kŭs) n.; pl. E. -cuses (-ĕz), L. abaci (-sī). 1. A frame for reckoning by means of sliding balls. 2. The uppermost division of the capital of a column.



A Abacus, 2.

a-baft' (ə-bâft'), prep. Naut. Behind; toward the stern from. — adv. Toward or at the stern; aft.

ab'a-lo'ne (ăb'ə-lō'nē), n. A large mollusk, having a flattened, oval, slightly spiral shell lined with mother-of-pearl.

a-ban'don (ə-băn'dŭn), v. t. 1. To give up wholly; forsake or renounce utterly. 2. To yield (one's self) unrestrainedly; as, to abandon one's self to vice.

Syn. Leave, quit, resign, surrender, relinquish, desert, forsake. — ABANDON, DESERT, FORSAKE. To abandon is to give up absolutely, or to leave without intention of return, often implying surrender to the mercy of something or some one else; as, to abandon a claim, a ship, a child, or a farm. To desert is to quit or leave in violation of duty; as, to desert one's regiment, principles. To forsake is to leave, or break off associations with, something familiar, dear, or habitual; as, to forsake one's friends, one's haunts, or one's evil habits.
